KAUNAS PHOTO festival this year goes to France, collaborating with the festival of Photaumnales in Beauvais, presenting a Lithuanian photography exhibition that tells a story of Lithuania and its people during the past half a century. This exhibition "LT – a tribe, traditions, trends" is honored to be the central exhibition of the Photaumnales festival, presented at the National Gallery of Carpet, welcoming the delegation of Lithuanian photographers. On display will be works by these authors: Antanas Sutkus, Vytautas Stanionis, Vytautas Stanionis younger, Klaudijus Driskius, Donatas Stankevičius, Mindaugas Ažušilis. We sincerely hope that the 9th KAUNAS PHOTO festival will offer wings to real fans of photography.

Some photographers will find ways to the world of art photography through a meeting of international image community in a relatively globally unimportant town of Kaunas.

Others will find like-minded people, and feel togetherness in the company of the international image community, enjoying fresh photography, unseen works, unheard-of names.

Every year, KAUNAS PHOTO festival is covered in magazines, blogs around the world with most of them admiring the event. But believing in writers, articles, quotations, there is still a chance to make a wrong opinion about things. Let's say ... "Arles 2012 is dead. Long live Arles 2013. Whatever happens then, it couldn't possibly be worse than this. Let's not be hypocritical or too well behaved. Let's say out loud what everyone else has been saying under their breath. This year's festival was a failure." This was written by Jean-Jacques

Naudet on “Le journal de la Photographie” daily blog. Many of those, who did not go to Arles, the 2012 version of the father of photo festivals, might consider the article as a decisive argument. Everyone makes his/her own mind.

And we, the organizers of KAUNAS PHOTO festival, will remember Arles 2012 as the festival of mind-blowing news. In the KAUNAS PHOTO festival presentation in the space of debates, Lucien Clergue, founder of Arles rencontres disclosed something unsaid for the first time: “If we have Rencontres d’Arles today, it is thanks to Lithuania”, referring to his accidental and decisive meeting with Izis Bidermanas, exile from Lithuania, who at the photo club of Arles in 1954 advised the young violinist to take more pictures, which Lucien followed for the rest of his life... For me this was a discovery that I was looking for during the previous 9 visits to Arles!

In quest of your own vision, come to Kaunas, be a part of KAUNAS PHOTO festival.

The opening events are on September 4-8. Exhibitions and other events are up until October 14.

Who knows, what kind of surprise you can come across.
