

Main exhibition “Street Value”

“Street Value”, exhibition shown at the prime venue for international contemporary art space in Kaunas is a celebration of photography dealing with street, public space and new urban trends.

Flâneur – New Urban Narratives is a network project created by Procur.artē and financed by UNESCO (International Fund for Promotion of Culture) and also by the European Commission (Creative Europe Cooperation Program). Designed as an international partnership that involves 20 organizations from 11 different countries, the project is based on artistic interventions within public spaces, challenging contemporary photography. The Project encourages artists to create new interpretations of the urban terrain, taking the concept of flâneur as their starting point and considering the physical context of the city as a social construct in a state of constant flux and change. These interpretations of the urban terrain is revealing at the artists group exhibition "Street value", which is taking place at M. K. Čiurlionis art museum, M. Žilinskas art gallery.
